

Crystalist

It's a hot and beautiful day in Hawaii and along the beach kids are swimming, splashing, and having fun. But as a few kids are running they knock over a boy's sandcastle. So they go back to help rebuild it and suddenly they feel a sudden breeze of cold air. The boys looked up and saw a lady dressed in what seemed to be a blue and white ice skating dress and skates. She looked at the boys and said "oh drat". The lady is known as Crystalist, an evil villain who hates cold weather but wants to rule the world by freezing it and forcing everyone to obey her. The only problem is because she hates cold weather and lives in Hawaii she can't use her freeze ray because it needs to be cold to use it. But Crystalist had a plan to rule the world even with these complications. First, Crystalist went to the beach and talked to the boys who knocked over the sandcastle. She asked them to come to the dark side and help her rule the world. They said they would join her if, when they ruled the world they get Europe. So it was a deal! The boys now worked for her. Now, Crystalist still couldn't use her freeze ray because it was so hot out. The one boy said "if you hold ice cream and snow cones in your hands you might be able to use your freeze ray because the ice cream and snow cones would make your hands cold enough to do it". She took his advice and tried to take over the police station. It almost worked, but then the ice cream and snow cones started to melt. She started to run away. She thought she could use her freeze ray if she got to someplace cold. She ran into a grocery store. As she started to use her freeze ray, she made some of the ice from it into ice sculptures of faces which the designs of them are now called tiki faces to trip the officers. She had no place to run but outside and when she did she tried to freeze the officers but it didn't work. Crystalist to this day remains in a jail in Hawaii where they always keep it hot.
