The Adventures of Catalina & Rockstar
Super Hero Tall Tale

In the not too distant future things will change like you wouldn't believe. Some for the better, some for the well... not so better. People will live their dreams. Others will live their worst nightmares. Diseases will be cured, inventions will be invented, and life as we know it will be changed forever.

Most know us, some think we're legends, saving the innocent and destroying evil. We are known as Catalina and Rockstar. We were accidentally created by a mad scientist and we have almost every power known to man between the two of us.

We were born to know the difference between good and evil, which ever we follow is our choice. Like any other day we lay low waiting for evil to happen. We found our arch enemy The Silver Liner trying to take over the city of Velcain. In an effort to stop her, Rockstar ran at lightening speed to get the World's Biggest Rope. In the mean time, it was up to me to stop her.

I threw lightening fast kicks and punches to bring to an end, it didn't work. I tried again with my laser vision to melt her boots to the ground then I kicked her into a building.

I thought to myself "Where is Rockstar?" The Silver Liner was getting up so I tried to freeze her but it did nothing against her heat power.

Finally Rockstar got back but she had a big fish tank not a rope. So we took Silver Liner up in it and shipped her off to sea.

She will never harm the City of Velcain ever again.
